HEINEMAN MERC. CO. "The Store of Quality"

It is one thing to make a claim, but another matter to substantiate it. It is easy enough to say

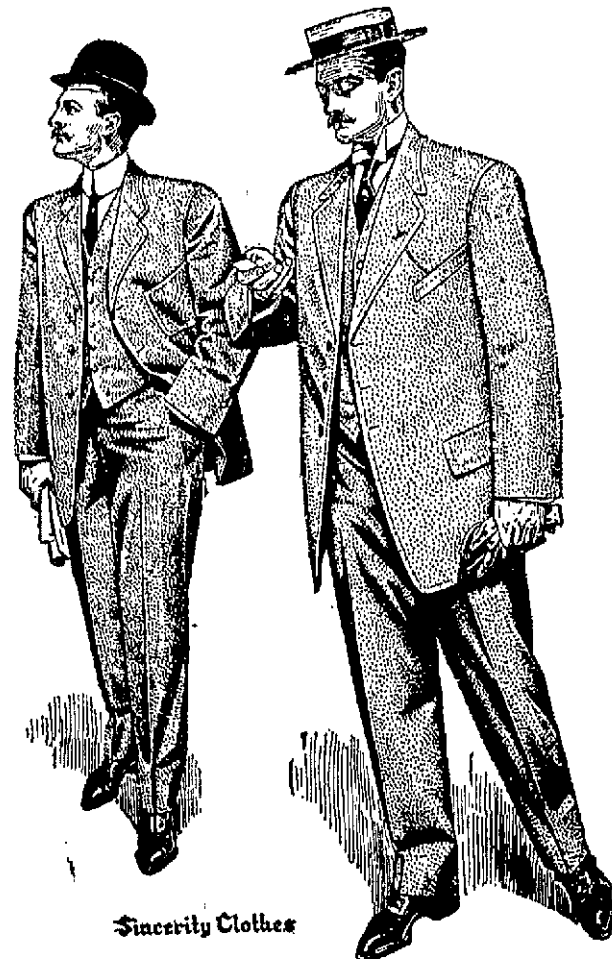

"the best" clothes in the world"--most clothiers make that claim. What we say about our clothing is that we know it, and know how its made--London shrunk fabrics; canvas, hair-cloth and even the tape used to divide the strain on pockets--all is shrunk. So when you come to wear the clothes they are not going to warp and shrink like green wood. It's because we know our lines so well that we urge you to test by any quality test, and compare it with any other clothing in price, by the quality test.

It has taken us many years to know clothing. The average man must trust to his dealer and to the maker the values.

Our percentage of profit is less on this make; but the satisfaction is greater.

An alteration will be made in the front of the store and the shelving taken out of one side so that a number of automobiles can be run into the place at one time, and if this room is found to be inadequate an addition will be built onto the place.

Mr. Huntington will be assisted in the work by his son George, who is also a first class mechanic and has been working at the business for some time past.

Easter Doings

Both services at the Methodist church on Easter Sunday were especially interesting. The morning service was enjoyed by a church filled to the overflowing with parents of the scholars of the Sunday school. One especial feature of this service was the recitation of a class of over forty of the Sunday school scholars into the church on preparatory membership; these, after proper training, will be received into full communion. All of these had recently expressed their desire to live christian lives. The evening service was enjoyed by a large congregation who appreciated the special Easter anthems by the choir, as well as the sermon by Rev. Nowing on "The Living Christ." The church had been tastefully decorated with Easter and Chas. Lilas making a very pleasing effect.

Strike at Furniture Factory

The workmen at the Oberbeck furniture factory went out on a strike on Saturday noon, and since that time the factory has been shut down. When interviewed one of the men stated that they wanted an increase of ten per cent in their wages and pay day every two weeks instead of once a month as heretofore. The men, however, are rather secretive, and do not have much to say about what their demands are, nor what they intend doing. The people about the furniture factory are mutually reticent, and are not making any statement as to what they intend to do in the matter, but the indications are that they do not intend to concede anything to the strikers.

It is announced at Wausau that the plants of the Union Starch company will be opened in that city and at Plainfield and Hancock as soon as the roads are in condition to admit of the hauling of potatoes. These plants have been idle since 1907, the high price of potatoes making it impossible to manufacture potato starch at a profit.

Local potato dealers say that potatoes are worth only about 8 cents a bushel now, and no prospect of a raise.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all dealers.

Season a Discouraging One

Andrew Bissig, agent for the Wisconsin Cranberry Sales company, was a pleasant caller at the Tribune office this morning. Mr. Bissig is turned from Chicago on Saturday having been down there the greater part of the time since the cranberry crop was harvested last fall looking after the interests of the growers in this section.

When questioned concerning the condition of affairs the past season Mr. Bissig stated that they had been rather discouraging. While the price of berries had been fairly good at the start in the crop had been deteriorated very rapidly, so that berries that were shipped to market in prime condition would within a couple of weeks fall away so as to be unsalable unless they were put through the sorting machine again. This change took place within a very short time, so that berries changed over much within a couple of weeks to be hardly recognizable by the purchaser that owned them.

The demand from retailers was so light during the winter that Mr. Bissig made a trip to look over the existing conditions and see what the trouble was. He found that many retail dealers had put in a supply of berries earlier in the season and that the berries had failed to keep and looked so bad that they would not sell. The dealers would not buy any more berries until the first ones were sold, and as these did not sell, things were at a standstill. Those who shipped their berries out first got a fair price and disposed of their crop without difficulty, but the speculative grower who held his crop for a high price was up against a tough proposition. Mr. Bissig has completed his work at Chicago and expects to spend the remainder of the season on the marsh of Bissig Bros near City Point.

Making Boarding Houses Sanitary for Students

A thorough inspection of all rooming and boarding houses for students at the University of Wisconsin has been begun under the auspices of the hygiene committee of the faculty, to determine fully the sanitary and hygienic condition of each.

This is the first time that the scorecard system of regulation of living conditions for students at the university has been applied.

A full report of the ventilation, plumbing, cleanliness, lighting, heating and general surroundings is to be made out by the inspector and kept on file in the office of the committee.

Defective conditions found to be reported to the owner and occupant, and steps will be taken to compel all offering accommodation for students to maintain a reasonable standard of living conditions.

Pominville performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ottenberg will make their home on the west side in this city and the Tribune wishes with their many friends in extending congratulations.

The government asks the supreme court of the United States to immediately dissolve the Standard Oil Company. This is awfully sudden and it would seem as if they would give the company a few minutes to close up their affairs. There is just one drawback to carrying out the order, and that is that the Standard Oil company is a notch or two bigger than the supreme court.

May Move Their Station.

The Benitz Pickle company which has been conducting a salting station at Pittsville for some years past, are thinking some of moving their station to some other point, owing to the fact that very few farmers in that section care to engage in the raising of cucumbers. The company would like to get two hundred acres in that section planted to cucumbers, but would be satisfied with one hundred acres, but so far have been unable to get this amount.

Shut Up Your Poultry.

The City Federation respectfully calls the attention of the public to this city ordinance No. 124, and especially to that clause of Section 1 which states that no grown or poultry shall be allowed to run at large in this city.

Citizens complain that it is impossible to have gardens because this law is not observed and have asked the assistance of the Federation in overcoming the difficulty.

Will Open a Garage

D. M. Huntington has decided to open an automobile garage at his place near the library building, and has already commenced making the necessary changes that will be required for the purpose. While Mr. Huntington has already a well supplied repair shop he has also ordered the necessary tools to be used in connection with the larger work he will be compelled to handle. An alteration will be made in the front of the store and the shelving taken out of one side so that a number of automobiles can be run into the place at one time, and if this room is found to be inadequate an addition will be built onto the place.

Mr. Huntington will be assisted in the work by his son George, who is also a first class mechanic and has been working at the business for some time past.

Baseball Organization.

There was a meeting of baseball enthusiasts at the city hall on Saturday evening and an organization was perfected so that the coming summer we will probably have some ball games. At the meeting on Saturday evening there were about thirty present and L. E. Nash was elected president and F. L. Bourke secretary. A committee was appointed consisting of L. E. Nash, Otto Roenig, Jos. Wheeler, Ed. Engstrom, F. L. Bourke and Joseph Cohen to solicit subscription for the plan, and it is expected that about $1500 can be raised for the season.

The organization will be known as the Grand Rapids-Nekoosa-Edwards Baseball association. Another meeting will be held within a short time when permanent officers will be elected.

Easter Doings

Both services at the Methodist church on Easter Sunday were specially interesting. The morning service was enjoyed by a church filled to the overflowing with parents of the scholars of the Sunday school.

One special feature of this service was the reception of a class of over forty of the Sunday school scholars into the church on preparatory membership; these, after proper training, will be received into full communion.

All of these had recently expressed their desire to live christian lives. The evening service was enjoyed by a large congregation was enjoyed by the special Easter sermon by Rev. Chas. W. Thompson.

The church had been tastefully decorated with Easter and Calvary lilies making a very pleasing effect.

Strike at Furniture Factory

The workmen at the Oberbeck furniture factory went out on a strike on Saturday noon, and since that time the factory has been shut down.

When interviewed one of the men stated that they wanted an increase of ten per cent in their wages and pay day every two weeks instead of once a month as heretofore. The men, however, are rather secretive, and do not have much to say about what their demands are, nor what they intend doing.

The people about the furniture factory are equally reticent, and are not making any statement as to what they intend to do in the matter, but the indications are that they do not intend to concede anything to the strikers.

ALTDORF

Mr. and Mrs. F. Wipki are rejoicing over the birth of a baby boy last Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Alois Huser just recently received a license from the state medical board entitling her to practice midwifery. Any one in need of such services will do well to call on Mrs. Huser.

John Wilhelm had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse last week. Pretty hard luck and especially at this time of year when springs work has begun.

Prof. Geo. J. Baker of Minneapolis was down here from Friday till on Sunday. He has started to farm on his place in Section 8, having placed John Waterman an agricultural student in charge of same.

John Heiser and family of Grand Rapids spent Easter at Robert Leu's. Mary Ruesch spent Easter at home.

ARPIN

Miss Bertha Stoeckling came up from Fond du Lac Saturday to visit with friends here a few days.

Misses Lena Milbrandt and Sadie Cowell visited with the latter's sister Mrs. Clifton Bluet at St. Joseph's hospital at Marshfield between trains Thursday.

Earl Winebrenner was a Grand Rapids caller Wednesday.

Joe Roskopf, Tom Smith and a Grand Rapids caller came up from the Rapids and took in the dance Monday evening.

A large crowd attended the dance Monday evening at the hall and everyone reports a fine time.

It is announced at Wausau that the plants of the Union Starch company will be opened in that city and at Plainfield and Hancock as soon as the roads are in condition to admit of the hauling of potatoes. These plants have been idle since 1907, the high price of potatoes making it impossible to manufacture potato starch at a profit.

Local potato dealers say that potatoes are worth only about 8 cents a bushel now, and no prospect of a raise.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all dealers.

Season a Discouraging One.

Andrew Bissig, agent for the Wisconsin Cranberry Sales company, was a pleasant caller at the Tribune office this morning.

Mr. Bissig returned from Chicago on Saturday, having been down there the greater part of the time since the cranberry crop was harvested last fall looking after the interests of the growers in this section.

When questioned concerning the condition of affairs the past season, Mr. Bissig stated that they had been rather discouraging. While the price of berries had been fairly good at the start in, the crop had deteriorated very rapidly, so that berries that were shipped to market in prime condition would within a couple of weeks fall away so as to be unsalable unless they were put through the sorting machine again. This change took place within a very short time, so that berries changed so much within a couple of weeks as to be hardly recognizable by the person that owned them.

The demand from retailers was so light during the winter that Mr. Bissig made a trip to look over the existing conditions and see what the trouble was. He found that many retail dealers had put in a supply of berries earlier in the season and that the berries had failed to keep and looked so bad that they would not sell. The dealers would not buy any more berries until the first ones were sold, and as these did not sell, things were at a standstill. Those who shipped their berries first got a fair price and disposed of their crop without difficulty, but the speculative grower who held his crop for a high price was up against a tough proposition. Mr. Bissig has completed his work at Chicago and expects to spend the remainder of the season on the marsh of Bissig Bros near City Point.

Making Boarding Houses Sanitary for Students.

A thorough inspection of all rooming and boarding houses for students at the University of Wisconsin has been begun under the auspices of the hygiene committee of the faculty, to determine fully the sanitary and hygienic condition of each.

This is the first time that the scorecard system of regulation of living conditions for students at the university has been applied.

A full report of the ventilation, plumbing, cleanliness, lighting, heating and general surroundings is to be made out by the inspector and kept on file in the office of the committee.

Defective conditions found at a rooming house were reported to the owner and occupant, and steps will be taken to compel all offering accommodation for students to maintain a reasonable standard of living conditions.

The government asks the supreme court of the United States to immediately dissolve the Standard Oil Company. This is awfully sudden and it would seem as if they would give the company a few minutes to close up their affairs. There is just one drawback to carrying out the order, and that is that the Standard Oil company is a noteholder or two bigger than the supreme court.

The Man on the Box by Harold McGrath and Grace Livingston Furness will be presented at Daly's Theatre, Friday April 8. Those who have read the book as it is one of the most delightful stories ever written.

May Move Their Station.

The Heintz-Pickle company which has been conducting a salting station at Pittsville for some years past, are thinking of moving their station to some other point, owing to the fact that very few farmers in that section care to engage in the raising of cucumbers. The company would like to get two hundred acres in that section planted to cucumbers, but would be satisfied with one hundred acres, but so far have been unable to get this amount.

Shut Up Your Poultry.

The City Federation respectfully calls the attention of the public to the city ordinance No. 126, and especially to that clause of Section 1 which states that no geese or poultry shall be allowed to run at large in this city.

Citizens complain that it is impossible to have gardens because this law is not observed and have asked the assistance of the Federation in overcoming the difficulty.

KELLOGG HITS TRUST

QUESTIONED BY COURT AS HE ARGUES FOR STANDARD'S DEATH.

ADMITS ABILITY OF HEADS

Declares Corporation's Energy Has Crushed Competition Under Ensign of Black Flag and Will Control Country If Not Crushed.

Washington.—Frank B. Kellogg, lawyer for the government, after speaking three hours and a half Monday before the United States supreme court, in going over the evidence in the case for the dissolution of the Standard Oil, concluded with the words: "If the court is not a combination in restraint of trade, then, in Heaven's name what is it?"

"If it is not a monopoly, then what is it? I challenge all history to show its equal as a combination, or as a monopoly. It was just the sort of concern that congress had in mind when it legislated against combinations in restraint of trade. It was a trust agreement that was copied in all other trust agreements that led to the anti-trust act."

"What sort of a corporation do you think the legislature had in mind when the act was passed?" asked Mr. Justice White who had listened intently.

"The Standard Oil Company," was Mr. Kellogg's quick reply, and he practically rested his case there.

Mr. Kellogg, for the government, followed John C. Milburn, representing the corporation, and like Mr. Milburn he gave a history of the Standard Oil Company, but it was an entirely different history from that presented by the corporation attorney.

"Mr. Milburn says that is competition," he said after citing evidence to show how the Standard had driven its competitors from business. "It was competition, the fiercest kind of competition. But I deny that the Standard of this country are so low that it was necessary to lie and cheat for this corporation to maintain its status against competition."

"Have I denied that they have ability and energy?" he said again, replying to Mr. Milburn's contention that it was ability and energy that built up the Standard's business.

"They have ability and energy of the highest order; ability to make combinations and energy to crush competition. I have raised the Standard flag and it is under that flag that they are working to crush their competitors."

He read from the defendant's brief that they had a right to combine and use their money as they pleased, and then he said: "Let them combine and use their money as they please, and I believe that this company and others like it will control the industrial affairs of this country before five years have passed; yes, before five years have passed, and if you remove the fear of the law, they will combine, they will control the country."

Mr. Kellogg argued at length to show that the company has a monopoly in the meaning of the Sherman law. He showed that it controls $5 Washington.—The Gallinger bill chartering the Rockefeller foundation will encounter much opposition outside the senate committee. It is reported by the senate committee on district affairs.

For ten days it has been whispered about in administration circles that Mr. Rockefeller had the bill introduced with the announcement that his fortune is to be devoted to philanthropic work for the express purpose of creating popular sentiment favorable to himself and the Standard Oil Company, and he has been denounced for taking this action on the eve of the consideration by the supreme court of the suit to dissolve that corporation.

Attorney General Wickersham is one of Mr. Rockefeller's most severe critics. He has made no public statement, but he is said to have characterized Mr. Rockefeller's action as "brazen effrontery" and "outrageous audacity."

The matter has been called to President Taft's attention and the prediction has been made that he would not sign the bill if passed. So far as can be learned, however, he has expressed no opinion on which such a prediction might be based.

This opposition to the Rockefeller bill, originating in the department of justice, which has been fighting the Standard for four years, has been kept under cover until the publication of a letter to the editor of the Washington (D.C.) Gazette expressing Mr. Rockefeller's pleasure at that paper's favorable mention of the project.

This letter is pointed to as absolute confirmation of the charge that Mr. Rockefeller is making a bid for popular applause and is encouraging and stimulating expression of approval in the press and pulp in all parts of the country.

BALLINGER IS CONTRADICTED

CHIEF ENGINEER OF RECLAMATION SERVICE TESTIFIES.

Secretary Wanted Power Sites Restored Slowly So as Not to Attract Public Attention.

Washington.—A. P. Davis, chief engineer of the reclamation service, gave testimony before the Ballinger-Mitchell investigation Friday. He testified that he had known Mr. Ballinger directed him to go slowly about restoring certain power sites on public lands to the public domain so as not to attract public attention.

Mr. Davis declared that in preparing plans of land to be restored to the public domain, Mr. Ballinger felt that he was acting under mandatory orders from the secretary.

These lands had been withdrawn, witness said, by Secretary Garfield for the conservation of water power sites. Mr. Ballinger, according to Davis, had repeatedly issued orders that lands so withdrawn should be prepared for restoration, as their withdrawal had been in direct violation of law and could not be sustained. No written orders, however, were ever issued.

Mr. Davis told in detail an interview he had with Mr. Ballinger at his hotel in March last, in which he criticized the conduct of the reclamation service and declared illegal the withdrawal of large areas of power sites.

Mr. Pepper brought out the fact that Mr. Davis in making his recommendations for restoration of the land withdrawn was acting upon the mandatory order of Secretary Ballinger. This mandatory order, he said, was given orally by Mr. Ballinger to his own secretary, Mr. Davis said he would have made no such recommendation.

This evidence was of especial importance because of the fact that Ballinger in his defense to the president stated that he acted in making the restoration upon the recommendation of the reclamation service.

Washington.—James H. Garfield, former secretary of the interior, testified Thursday before the Ballinger-Mitchell investigation committee that he did not believe the $300,000 bond insurance recommended by President Taft to be necessary for the proper forwarding of irrigation work in the west.

He said in this defense of the cooperative agreements he entered into with water users' associations and of the "reclamation certificates" he issued, which came to be known as "Garfield currency."

Mr. Garfield said Attorney General Wickersham and President Taft did not have the proper facts before them when they reached conclusions adverse when they reached the reclamation certificates, the use of which was stopped by Mr. Ballinger.

Will Arbitrate Rail War

Request of Railroad Officials and Firemen for Mediation by Federal Authorities Is Granted.

Chicago.—After the hour for calling a strike of 27,000 railroad employees had been fixed by W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and the union men who had been working for the express purpose of creating popular sentiment favorable to himself and the Standard Oil Company, and he has been denounced for taking this action on the eve of the consideration by the supreme court of the suit to dissolve that corporation.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Feed out the cane and Katir.

A well drained garden is an early one.

Carelessness in handling pigs is a bad habit to acquire.

Even on cold days hogs should have plenty of good fresh air.

Keep the sheep pens clean. Dirt and foul odors affect sheep quickly.

Health is natural, disease is unnatural; health is contagious as well as disease.

A good three-year well-bred colt is worth $150 to $200. Does he pay his keep?

It is a mistake to suppose that a good cow of inferior breeding is qualified to drop a good calf.

To make hogs profitable we must provide plenty of range that we may keep their yards clean and sanitary.

Where fowls have been kept in good condition during summer and fall, the problem of winter eggs is generally solved.

The trap nest and the numbered leg will enable a breeder to keep an accurate account of the performances of his fowls.

Hogs lose the use of their hind quarters from need of laxative food. A little cotton seed meal fed occasionally will remedy this.

Don't leave the ice and mud frozen on the horses' ankles when you come home from town, unless you want them to have rheumatism.

There are over 7,000 beekeepers in this country, and product of their hives last year was enough to fill a train of cars over 400 miles long.

Cow-peas make excellent hay which, if properly handled, is equal to alfalfa in nutritive value, although as a rule stock do not eat cow-pea hay as readily as alfalfa.

Throw an extra lot of hay into the poultry yard. The chickens will scratch over every clover seed. There is no better way to make them work for their food.

A practical farmer tells the condition of any soil by treading upon it with his feet. The man who is unerring as a cattle breeder tells the breeding quality of an animal by feeling its skin.

Piano boxes make good colony houses. A yard of netting should be attached where fowls can have a grassy run. They should be given a pile of sand to scratch in.

It is foolish economy to keep using harness which is worn out. Many fatal accidents, both to the horses and drivers, have occurred because something gave way at the wrong time.

It is just as well to have a well-bred chicken as a well-bred horse or cow. Any amount of food will not make a mongrel as profitable as a pure-bred under the same conditions.

Good stock demands good care and if they do not receive it, they are liable to degenerate. The man who is inclined to abuse his stock should stick to the scrub or raise grain exclusively.

On an Illinois farm where corn and oats have been grown alternately for 31 years the physical condition of the ground is very bad. It washes easily and runs together as the other soil near it does not.

It is hard to tell how much freezing bees can stand, but the better protected they are the less honey they can store. For it is a well-known fact among beekeepers that the bees use a great deal of honey as fuel in order to keep comfortable in winter.

It is an interesting and very encouraging thing to note that while the newer western states are generally poor farmers, the older states, seeing the error of their ways, are steadily increasing their average yields by better methods of farming.

A good grain ration for the laying stock is composed of the buckwheat, corn and oats, the wheat predominating. Too much corn is not good for laying hens, but a little fed with other grains is beneficial. Add to this grain ration a little allowance of vegetable food, cut clover and a little green cut home two or three times a week and water and the mixture is perfectly balanced ration for the laying hens.

Lime sulphur wash is the preparation most generally used for San Jose scale and other scale insects, and is, besides, an excellent fungicide. It is made as follows: Sulphur, 15 lbs.; caustic lime, 15 lbs.; water, 50 gals. Slake lime with hot water, and while slaking rapidly pour in the sulphur; after mixing, increase the water to about 15 gallons and boil briskly for 45 minutes. Dilute to 500 gallons with cold water and the mixture is ready to apply.

There is good education for the farm boy in learning how to properly run and care for the farm tools and machinery, even if he does not live on a farm afterwards. It is a discipline for mind and muscle that will be valuable in nearly all other vocations.

"Wheat and oat crops," says Prof. Andrew B. Wood, "are the ones which bring in the money, and there is no reason why the farmer should not get from 20 to 30 bushels an acre with the proper selection of seed alone."

Buy a dairy thermometer.

Gather the eggs several times a day.

Milk cows sell higher than beef steers.

If you want to borrow trouble, go to a money lender.

The scrub hen is going out of style, just as is the scrub cow.

Bran is an excellent substitute for succulence in the sow's ration.

To be successful a man must be particular with his breeding stock.

Cold and discomfort are unprofitable things to keep in the dairy barn.

We can't preserve the flesh on our cattle if we want the largest quantity of milk.

Every change in feeding should be gradual and with an eye open to note the results.

Mismanagement or lack of thought makes a good deal of trouble in the handling of stock.

Breed only pure bred sires in every class of stock and you will soon be blessed with pure bred dams.

Lettuce is relished by the laying hens and can be grown very easily if intended for that purpose only.

Feeding the brood sows plenty of slop made of wheat middlings and skim milk will help milk production.

The young duck is a nervous individual and should not be unduly excited. Dogs, cats or strangers irritate them.

The more active the breed the slower to fatten. Remember this if you are breeding for the market in flesh as well as eggs.

No animal on the farm is as dainty as the sheep when it comes to drinking water. It must be clean before the sheep will touch it.

Some poultrymen advise camphor gum put in chicken drinking water once or twice every ten or twelve days as a good preventive against cholera.

Some poultrymen advise the use of chopped corn, mixed with turpentine, or wheat soaked with turpentine as a preventive feed against gapes in chicks.

If the young pigs should show signs of looseness of the bowels, shut off all feed to the sow but dry oats for a day or two, and the trouble will usually disappear.

Manure is never so valuable as when fresh. Exposure to air and water in the barnyard does not improve it; nothing is added, except water and much is lost.

To give good results either in the breeding pen or feed lot a sheep must have strong constitution and narrow chested, straight ribbed sheep rarely if ever prove profitable.

Whenever you see a flock of undocked sheep, be sure the farmer does not know his business. Docking means cleanliness and it gives a sheep a more blocky appearance.

A knowledge of corn judging is worth a lot to the farmer. The crops can be improved only as the seed is carefully selected. Judging makes it possible to select the best seed.

One way to plump a dressed fowl is to dip it for ten seconds in water nearly or boiling hot and then immediately in cold water. Hang in a cool place until the animal heat is all out.

When the hogs are confined keep the floors of the pen as free from dust as possible. Hogs lie with their noses close to the floor and in this way inhale more dust than any other farm animal.

In choosing a breed of cattle or any other class of live stock due consideration should be given to the question of environment. Where one breed would be a failure another would perhaps be a success.

Some of us are dairymen of natural born instinct, some have acquired a knowledge of the business by hard study and practical experience and some are dairymen because they keep a few cows. All of us have much to learn.

Sheep should be graded according to size, putting the prime ones in a lot to be fed by themselves; and if you are determined to keep the poor ones, put them in a different lot and do the best you can with them. Better sell them, though.

There is no more certain way of burning up money than by permitting manure to stand in the barnyard in heaps and burn away its fertilizing properties. When it does not burn, it becomes waterlogged and is twice as heavy to handle as when fresh.

Good, big drafts seem to attract the most attention and yet the perfect draft horse is hard to find in the average rural community. Extra large young horses are picked up at good prices by buyers who want such stuff and the farmer gets along with less valuable animals. That is all right for geldings, but the best young mares ought to remain on the farm.

Green feeds from the silo are useful when the sow has to be kept confined a week or so before farrowing the sow should be shut in from all other stock. The pen should be floored and around the sides boards 12 inches wide should be nailed to the studding about ten inches from the floor. This is to prevent the sow from getting her feet against the side walls. Little bedding should be used as pigs are liable to be entangled in it and over-laid.

While prime steers have been selling up to $25.00 and $30.00 and even $32.50 per hundred pounds, a close examination of the sales made each day at the principal market centers shows that the great bulk of the steers sold ran from $6 to $7 a hundred.

To achieve success in breeding sheep every effort should be directed toward the permanent fixation of desirable characteristics that will impart vigor to the stock and improve the quality of the wool and mutton.

TINY BABY'S PITIFUL CASE

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few matters pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalded. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body, leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura. By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this scab the real matter was by washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily.

"After three days you could see the baby gaining a new skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few sufferers with eczema. America's Opportunity in Turkey.

Dr. George Washington Weller, of Rochester college, 1870-1903, writes:

"It is a great opportunity, a wonderful opportunity, and it is a call especially to Americans. They believe in us now in Turkey. They trust us. There is nobody they believe in more than Americans in Turkey. They know that we are honest and they know we are doing it for their good. They trust us as they trust nobody else, and consequently it is a great opportunity, a wonderful opportunity, for us to go to Turkey and make them know what Christ is and what Christ is to the world."

Well-Conducted Visitors.

George W. Vanderbilt, at a dinner in Asheville, said:

"I am named after George Washington, and as George Washington's birthday approaches I want to register my faith in the people to whom he gave freedom."

"These people are worthy of freedom. I don't abuse it. This fact was brought home to me when, on one of the days when Biltmore was open to the public, I strolled unrecognized over my lawn."

"As I watched the orderly and polite visitors, a shabby young man hissed at me from a pass."

"Hey, get off that! It ain't allowed."

"And he pointed to a keep-off-the-grass sign, and kept his stern eye on me till he saw that the order was obeyed."

A New Version.

Prospres of George Washington and the cherry tree story, Senator Beveridge said at a dinner in Indianapolis:

"I asked a little boy what this story was the other day, and he actually didn't know. He said he knew, though, the story about the judgment of Solomon, and he proceeded to tell it to me."

"Solomon," he said, "was a very wise man. One day two women went to him, quarreling about a baby. The first woman said, 'Is my child.' The second said, 'No, it is mine.'"

"But Solomon spoke up and declared:

"No, no, ladies; do not quarrel. Give me my sword and I will make twins of him, so that each of you will be supplied."

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Stick to a Habit When It Means Discomfort?

Old King Coffee knocks subjects out like a flat at times, and there is no possible doubt of what did it. A rich woman gave her experience:

"I used to have liver trouble nearly all of the time and took medicine which relieved me only for a little while. Then every once in a while I would be suddenly seized with a pain in my stomach. It seemed as though every time I took a breath I would die. No one could suffer any more and live."

"Finally I got down so sick with catarrh of the stomach that I could not turn over in bed, and my stomach did not digest even milk. When I took a drink of coffee I would surely die, but I felt I could not give it up."

"However, husband brought home a package of Postum and it was made strictly according to directions. It was the only thing that would stay on my stomach, and I soon got so I liked it very much."

"Gradually I began to get better, and by week gained in strength and health. Now I am in perfect condition, and I am convinced that the whole cause of my trouble was coffee drinking, and my setting better was due to leaving out coffee and drinking Postum. I found, some time ago, I tasted some coffee and found to my astonishment that I did not care anything about it. I never have to take medicine any more. I hope you will use this letter for the benefit of those suffering from the poisonous effects of coffee."

COOPER FOLLOWERS GIVE REASON FOR THEIR BELIEF

With a theory that human health is dependent on the stomach and with a medicine which he says proves this theory, L. T. Cooper, a comparatively young man, has built up an immense following during the past year. Cooper has visited most of the leading cities of the country, and in each city has aroused a storm of discussion about his beliefs and his medicines. Wherever he has gone, people have called upon him by tens of thousands, and his preparation has sold in immense quantities.

The sale of this medicine has now spread over the entire country, and is growing enormously each day. In view of this, the following statements from two of the greatest number of followers which he now has, are of general interest.

N. V. Marsh, residing at 217 South Daly street, Los Angeles, Cal., has the following to say upon the subject of the Cooper preparations:

"For more than a year I experienced the most intense suffering, due to a form of stomach trouble which the doctors called catarrhal gastritis. After eating I would fill up with gas, which caused frequent belching. The abdominal area would expand until I could scarcely breathe, causing great distress. At such times I could not keep still, but paced the streets for hours until the pain subsided."

"Frequently I went without eating rather than endure the torture that was sure to follow. Liquids were the only kind of food I could partake of with safety. I had spells of dizziness, and became badly run down through suffering and lack of proper nourishment. I tried various remedies in search of relief, but they failed to help me."

"Some time ago a brother member to a lodge to which I belong urged me to try the Cooper remedies, which were then being demonstrated in Los Angeles. He stated that he had been personally benefited by them in a like condition, and on the strength of his recommendation I procured a treatment of Cooper's New Discovery."

"It proved helpful from the first dose, and in less than a week I was eating regularly and heartily, without experiencing any bad effects afterward. Since taking the full treatment I am perfectly well and enjoy living for the first time in many months. Now I can eat a hearty supper, then go to bed and sleep like a healthy boy. I feel so well that I can hardly realize I was once so ill."

Another statement by Mr. W. B. Stewart, 109 W. Madison street, Chicago, is as follows: "I had had stomach trouble for years, and anyone who knows this way knows what an awful distressed feeling it causes. Many a time I have felt that I would give most any price to be cured. It was by accident that I heard of this man Cooper's remedies. I immediately made up my mind to try a treatment of them. I used it for about two weeks, and it is impossible to tell how much good it has done me. I feel altogether different. I have more life and energy than I have had for years. The medicine certainly does stimulate and strengthen a weak system. Tired feeling and weak condition of the stomach has entirely passed away. I feel well again."

KELLOGG HITS TRUST

QUESTIONED BY COURT AS HE ARGUES FOR STANDARD'S DEATH.

ADMITS ABILITY OF HEADS

Declares Corporation's Energy Has Crushed Competition Under Ensign of Black Flag and Will Control Country if Not Crushed.

Washington, Frank B. Kellogg, lawyer for the government, after speaking three hours and a half Monday before the United States supreme court, in going over the evidence in the case for the dissolution of the Standard Oil, concluded with the words "If the concern is not a combination in restraint of trade, then in Heaven's name what is it?"

"It is not a monopoly, then what is it? I challenge all history to show its equal as a combination, or as a monopoly. It was just the sort of concern that congress had in mind when it legislated against combinations in restraint of trade. It was its trust agreement that was copied in all other trust agreements that led to the anti-trust act."

"What sort of a corporation do you think the legislature had in mind when the act was passed?" asked Mr. Justice White who had listened intently.

"The Standard Oil Company," was Mr. Kellogg's quick reply, and he practically closed his case there.

Mr. Kellogg, for the government, followed John C. Milburn, representing the corporation, and like Mr. Milburn he gave a history of the Standard Oil Company, but it was an entirely different history from that presented by the corporation's attorneys.

"Mr. Milburn says that is competition," he said after citing evidence to show how the Standard had driven its competitors from business. "I admit it was competition, the fiercest kind of competition. But I deny that the morals of this country are so low that it was necessary to lie and steal and cheat for this corporation to maintain its status against competition."

"Have I denied that they have ability and energy?" he said again, replying to Mr. Milburn's contention that it was ability and energy that built up the Standard's business.

"They have ability and energy of the highest order; ability to make combinations and energy to crush out competition. That they have raised the black flag and it is under that flag that they have been able to crush their ability and energy have been used."

He read from the defendant's brief that they had a right to combine and use their money as they pleased, and then he said: "Let them combine and let them use their money as they please, and I believe that this company and others like it will control the industrial affairs of this country before ten years have gone by. Yes, before five years have passed, and if you remove the fear of the law, they will combine, they will control the country."

Mr. Kellogg argued at length to show that the company has a monopoly in the meaning of the Sherman law. He showed that it controls 85 Washington. The Kellogg bill chartering the Rockefeller foundation will encounter much opposition notwithstanding it has been favorably reported by the senate committee on distilleries.

For ten days it has been whispered about in administration circles that Mr. Rockefeller had the bill introduced with the announcement that his vast fortune is to be devoted to philanthropic work for the express purpose of creating popular sentiment favorable to himself and the Standard Oil Company, and he has been denounced for taking this action on the eve of the consideration by the supreme court of the suit to dissolve that corporation.

Attorney General Wickersham is one of Mr. Rockefeller's most severe critics. He has made no public statement, but he is said to have characterized Mr. Rockefeller's action as "brazen effrontery" and "outrageous audacity."

The matter has been called to President Taft's attention and the prediction has been made that he would not sign the bill if passed. So far as can be learned, however, he has expressed no opinion in which such a prediction might be based.

This opposition to the Kellogg bill, originating in the department of justice, which has been fighting the Standard for four years, has been kept under cover until the publication of a letter to the editor of the Waukegan (Ill.) Gazette expressing Mr. Rockefeller's pleasure at that paper's favorable mention of the project.

This letter is pointed to as absolute confirmation of the charge that Mr. Rockefeller is making a bid for popular approval and is encouraging and stimulating expressions of approval in the press and pulp in all parts of the country.

BALLINGER IS CONTRADICTED

CHIEF ENGINEER OF RECLAMATION SERVICE TESTIFIES.

Secretary Wanted Power Sites Restored Slowly So as Not to Attract Public Attention.

Washington—A P. Davis, chief engineer of the reclamation service, gave testimony before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation Friday strongly against Secretary Ballinger. He said Mr. Ballinger had directed him to go slowly about restoring certain power sites on public lands to the public domain so as not to attract public attention.

Mr. Davis declared that in preparing lists of lands to be restored by Secretary Ballinger he felt that he was acting under mandatory orders from the secretary.

These lands had been withdrawn, witness said, by Secretary Garfield for the construction of water power sites.

Mr. Ballinger, according to Davis, repeatedly gave verbal orders that lands so withdrawn should be prepared for restoration, as their withdrawal had been in direct violation of law and could not be sustained. No written orders, however, were ever issued.

Mr. Davis told in detail an interview he had with Mr. Ballinger at his hotel in March last, in which he criticized the conduct of the reclamation service and declared illegal the withdrawal of large areas of power sites.

Mr. Pepper brought out the fact that Mr. Davis in making his recommendations for restoration of the land withdrawal was acting upon the mandatory order of Secretary Ballinger. This mandatory order was given orally by Mr. Ballinger. Of his own volition Mr. Davis said he would have no such recommendation.

This evidence was of special importance because of the fact that Ballinger in his defense to the president stated that he acted in making these recommendations upon the recommendation of the reclamation service.

Washington—James H. Garfield, former secretary of the interior, told Thursday before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee that he did not believe the $30,000,000 bond issue, recommended by President Taft to congress, was necessary for the proper forwarding of irrigation work in the west.

He said this in defense of the cooperative agreements he entered into with water users' associations and of the "reclamation certificates" he issued in evidence of work performed and which came to be known as "Garfield currency."

Mr. Garfield said Attorney General Wickersham and President Taft did not have the proper facts before them when they reached opinions adverse to the legality of the reclamation certificates, the use of which was stopped by Mr. Ballinger.

Mediation by the federal authorities at Washington under the Erdman act has been asked for by representatives of all the railroads operating westward out of Chicago. In the trouble that has arisen between the railroad men and themselves. This mediation will be granted, and it is hoped in this way to avoid a strike, which would involve nearly 200,000 men and tie up all of the big western roads.

Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Dr. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, the federal mediators, start for Chicago Thursday to take up arbitration negotiations with the officials of the railroad men's union.

The committee which adopted the strike resolution comprised 38 members of the brotherhood.

The resolution followed a communication from the railway managers to the effect that they are willing to arbitrate the money question, which was one of the demands of the men, but absolutely refused to arbitrate two working rules demanded by the union.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Feed out the cane and Kafir.

A well drained garden is an early one.

Carelessness in handling pigs is a bad habit to acquire.

Even on cold days hogs should have plenty of good fresh air.

Keep the sheep pens clean. Dirt and foul odors affect sheep quickly.

Health is natural, disease is unnatural; health is contagious as well as disease.

A good three-year well-bred colt is worth from $150 to $200. Does he pay his keep?

It is a mistake to suppose that a good cow of inferior breeding is qualified to drop a good calf.

To make hogs profitable we must provide plenty of range that we may keep their yards clean and sanitary.

Where fowls have been kept in good condition during summer and fall, the problem of winter eggs is generally solved.

The trap nest and the numbered leg band enable a breeder to keep an accurate account of the performances of his fowls.

Hogs lose the use of their hind quarters from need of laxative food. A little cotton seed meal fed occasionally will remedy this.

Don't have the low and mud frozen on the horses' ankles when you come home from town, unless you want them to have rheumatism.

There are over 7,000 beekeepers in this country, and product of their hives last year was enough to fill a train of cars over 400 miles long.

Cowpox makes excellent hay which, if properly handled, is equal to alfalfa in nutritive value, although as a rule stock do not eat cow pea hay as readily as alfalfa.

Throw an extra lot of hay into the poultry yards. The chickens will scratch out every clover seed. There is no better way to make them work for their food.

A practical farmer tells the condition of any soil by treading upon it, as unerringly as a cattle breeder tells the feeding quality of an animal by feeling its skin.

Plane boxes make good colony hives. A yard of netting should be attached where fowls can have a grassy run. They should be given a pile of sand to scratch in.

It is foolish economy to keep using harness which is worn out. Many fatal accidents, both to the horses and drivers, have occurred because something gave way at the wrong time.

It is just as well to have a well-bred chicken as a well-bred horse or cow. Any amount of food will not make a mongrel as profitable as a pure-bred under the same conditions.

Good stock demands good care and if they do not receive it, they are sure to degenerate. The man who is inclined to abuse his stock should stick to the scrub or raise grain exclusively.

On an Illinois farm where corn and oats have been grown alternately for 31 years the physical condition of the ground is very bad. It washes easily and runs together as the other soil near it does not.

It is hard to tell how much freezing bees can stand, but the better protection they are the less honey they consume. For it is a well-known fact among beekeepers that the bees use a great deal of honey as fuel in order to keep comfortable in winter.

It is an interesting and very encouraging thing to note that while the newer western states are steadily reducing the average yields by poor farming, the older states, seeing the error of their ways, are steadily increasing their average yields by better methods of farming.

A good grain ration for the laying stock is composed of wheat, buckwheat, oats and corn, the wheat predominating. Too much corn is not good for laying hens, but a little fed with other grains is beneficial. Add to this grain ration a daily allowance of vegetable food, cut clover and a little green cut bone two or three times a week and you will have an almost perfectly balanced ration for the laying hens.

Lime sulphur wash is the preparation most generally used for San Jose scale and other scale insects, and is, besides, an excellent fungicide. It is made as follows: Sulphur, 15 lbs.; caustic lime, 15 lbs.; and water, 50 gallons. Shake time with hot water, and while shaking rapidly pour in the sulphur; after mixing, increase the water to about 15 gallons and boil briskly for 45 minutes. Dilute to 50 gallons with cold water and the mixture is ready to apply.

There is good education for the farm boy in learning how to properly run and care for the farm tools and machinery, even if he does not live on a farm afterwards. It is a discipline for mind and muscle that will be valuable in nearly all other vocations.

"Wheat and oat crops," says Prof. Andrew Boss, "are the ones which bring in the money, and there is no reason why the farmer should not get from 20 to 30 bushels an acre with the proper selection of seed alone."

Buy a dairy thermometer.

Gather the eggs several times a day.

Milk cows sell higher than beef steers.

If you want to borrow trouble, go to a money lender.

The scrub hen is going out of style, just as is the scrub cow.

Brain is an excellent substitute for succulence in the sow's ration.

To be successful a man must be particular with his breeding stock.

Cold and discomfort are unprofitable things to keep in the dairy barn.

We can't preserve the flesh on our cattle if we want the largest quantity of milk.

Every change in feeding should be gradual and with an eye open to note the results.

Mismanagement or lack of thought makes a good deal of trouble in the handling of stock.

Breed only pure bred sires in every class of stock and you will soon be blessed with pure bred dams.

Letting the brand sows plenty of slop made of wheat middlings and skim milk will help milk production.

The young duck is a nervous individual and should not be unduly excited. Dogs, cats or strangers irritate them.

The more active the breed the slower to fatten. Remember this if you are breeding for the market in flesh as well as eggs.

No animal on the farm is as dainty as the sheep when it comes to drinking water. It must be clean before the sheep will touch it.

Some poultrymen advise camphor gum put in chicken's drinking water once or twice every ten or twelve days as a good preventive against cholera.

Some poultrymen advise the use of chopped corn, mixed with turpentine, or wheat soaked with turpentine as a preventive feed against gapes in chicks.

If the young pigs should show signs of looseness of the bowels, shut off all feed to the sow but dry oats for a day or two, and this trouble will usually disappear.

Manure is never so valuable as when fresh. Exposure to air and water in the barnyard does not improve it; nothing is added, except water and much is lost.

To give good results either in the breeding pen or feed lot a sheep must have strong constitution and narrow chested, straight ribbed sheep rarely if ever prove profitable.

Whenever you see a flock of naked sheep, be sure the farmer does not know his business. Sheeking means cleanliness and it gives a sheep a more blocky appearance.

A knowledge of corn judging is worth a lot to the farmer. The crops can be improved only as the seed is carefully selected. Judging makes it possible to select the best seed.

One way to plump a dressed fowl is to dip it for ten seconds in water nearly or boiling hot and then immediately in cold water. Hang in a cool place until the animal heat is all out.

When the hogs are confined keep the floors of the pen as free from dirt as possible. Hogs lie with their noses close to the floor and in this way inhale more dirt than any other farm animal.

In choosing a breed of cattle or any other class of live stock due consideration should be given to the question of environment. Where one breed would be a failure another would perhaps be a success.

Some of us are dairymen of natural born instinct, some have acquired a knowledge of the business by hard study and practical experience and some are dairymen because they keep a few cows. All of us have much to learn.

Sheep should be graded according to size, putting the prime ones in a lot to be fed by themselves; and if you are determined to keep the poor ones, put them in a different lot and do the best you can with them. Better sell them, though.

There is no more certain way of burning up money than by permitting manure to stand in the barnyard in heaps and burn away its fertilizing properties. When it does not burn—sometimes when it does—it becomes waterlogged and is twice as heavy to handle as when fresh.

Good, big drafts seem to attract the most attention and yet the perfect draft horse is hard to find in the average rural community. Extra fine young horses are picked up at good prices by buyers who want such stuff and the farmer gets along with less valuable animals. That is all right for geldings, but the best young mares ought to remain on the farm.

Green feeds from the silo are useful when the sow has to be kept confined. A week or so before farrowing the sow should be shut in from all other stock. The pen should be floored and around the sides boards 12 inches wide should be nailed to the studding about ten inches from the floor. This is to prevent her from crushing her young against the side walls. Little bedding should be used as pigs are liable to be entangled in it and over-laid.

While prime steers have been selling up as high as $8.50 and $9.00 and even $9.25 per hundred pounds, a close examination of the sales made each day at the principal market centers shows that the great bulk of the steers sold ran from $6 to $7 a hundred.

To achieve success in breeding sheep every effort should be directed toward the permanent fixation of desirable characteristics that will impart vigor to the flock and improve the quality of the wool and mutton.

America's Opportunity in Turkey. Dr. George Washington, president of Robert College, 1870-1903, writes:

"It is a great opportunity, a wonderful opportunity, and it is a call especially to Americans. They believe in us now in Turkey. They trust us. There is nobody they believe in and trust as they do Americans in Turkey. They know that we have no selfish ends in view there. We do not want any of their territory; we are not going to try to overthrow the Turkish government; and they understand fully that what we are doing there we are doing for their good. They may think we make mistakes, but they know we are honest, and they know we are doing it for their good. They trust us as they trust nobody else, and consequently it is a great opportunity, a wonderful opportunity, for us to go and to try to make these people understand who Christ is and what Christ is to the world."

Well-Conducted Visitors. George W. Vanderbilt, at a dinner in Asheville, said:

"I am named after George Washington, and as George Washington's birthday approaches I want to register my faith in the people to whom he gave freedom. They don't abuse it. This fact was brought home to me when, on one of the days when Baltimore was open to the public, I strolled unrecognized over my lawn."

"As I watched the orderly and polite visitors, a shabby young man hissed at me fiercely from a path:

"'Hey, git off that! It ain't allowed.' And he pointed to a keep-off-the-grass sign, and kept his stern eye on me till he saw that the order was obeyed."

A New Version. Apropos of George Washington and the cherry tree story, Senator Beveridge said at a dinner in Indianapolis:

"I asked a little boy what this story was the other day, and he actually didn't know. He said he knew, though, the story about the judgment of Solomon, and he proceeded to tell it to me."

"Solomon," he said, "was a very wise man. One day two women went to him, quarreling about a baby. The first woman said, 'It is my child.' The second said, 'No, it is mine.'"

"But Solomon spoke up and declared: 'No, no, ladies; do not quarrel. Give me my sword and I will make twins of him, so that each of you will be supplied.'"

WHAT'S THE USE. Blotting to a Habit When It Means Discomfort?

Old King Coffee knocks subjects out tolerably flat at times, and there is no possible doubt of what did it. A Mich. woman gives her experience:

"I used to have liver trouble nearly all of the time and took medicine which relieved me only for a little while. Then every once in a while I would be suddenly doubled up with an awful agony in my stomach. It seemed as though every time I took a breath I would die. No one could suffer any more and live."

"Finally I got down so sick with catarrh of the stomach that I could not turn over in bed, and my stomach did not digest even milk. The doctor finally told me that if I did not give up drinking coffee I would surely die, but I felt I could not give it up."

"However, Husband brought home a package of Postum and it was made strictly according to directions. It was the only thing that would stay on my stomach, and I soon got so I liked it very much."

"Gradually I began to get better, and week by week gained in strength and health. Now I am in perfect condition, and I am convinced that the whole cause of my trouble was coffee drinking, and my getting better was due to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum."

"A short time ago I tasted some coffee and found, to my astonishment, that I did not care anything about it. I never have to take medicine any more. I hope you will use this letter for the benefit of those suffering from the poisonous effects of coffee."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason." Give read the above letter! A new cure for coffee habit. It is true, it is genuine, true, and full of human interest.

COOPER FOLLOWERS GIVE REASON FOR THEIR BELIEF

With a theory that human health is dependent on the stomach and with a medicine which he says proves this theory, L. T. Cooper, a comparatively young man, has built up an immense following during the past year.

Cooper has visited most of the leading cities of the country, and in each city has aroused a storm of discussion about his beliefs and his medicine. Wherever he has gone, people have called upon him by tens of thousands, and his preparation has sold in immense quantities.

The sale of this medicine has now spread over the entire country, and is growing enormously each day. In view of this, the following statements from two of the great number of followers which he now has, are of general interest.

N. V. Marsh, residing at 217 South Daisy street, Los Angeles, Cal., has the following to say upon the subject of the Cooper preparations:

"For more than a year I experienced the most intense suffering due to a form of stomach trouble which the doctors called catarrhal gastritis. After eating I would fill up with gas, which caused frequent belching. The abdominal area would expand until I could scarcely breathe, causing great distress. At such times I could not keep still, but paced the streets for hours until the pain subsided."

"Frequently I went without eating rather than endure the torture that was sure to follow. Liquids were the only kind of food I could partake of with safety. I had spells of dizziness, and became badly run down through suffering and lack of proper nourishment. I tried various remedies in search of relief, but they failed to help me."

"Some time ago a brother member in a lodge to which I belong urged me to try the Cooper remedies, which were then being demonstrated in Los Angeles. He stated that to his personal knowledge they had been of great benefit to others in a like condition, and on the strength of his recommendation I procured a treatment of Cooper's New Discovery."

"It proved helpful from the first dose, and in less than a week I was eating regularly and heartily, without experiencing any bad effects afterward. Since taking the first treatment I am perfectly well and enjoy living for the first time in many months. Now I can eat a hearty supper, then go to bed and sleep like a healthy boy. I feel so well that I can hardly realize I am the same man. Cooper's New Discovery has worked a marvelous change in me—it has done all that was claimed for it."

Another statement by Mr. W. B. Stewart, 109 W. Madison street, Chicago, is as follows: "I have had stomach trouble for years, and anyone who is afflicted this way knows what it causes. Many a time I have felt that I would give most any price to be cured. It was by accident that I heard of the man Cooper's remedy. I immediately made up my mind to buy a treatment of him. I used it for about two weeks, and it is impossible to tell how much good it has done me. I feel altogether different. I have more life and energy than I have had for years. The medicine certainly does stimulate and strengthen the whole system. Tired feeling and weak condition of the stomach has entirely passed away. I feel well again."

Superintendent's Annual Report, 1909-1910.

The schools in this city have continued very much as usual during the year. The spirit shown by all interested in the schools has been such that it cannot fail to make for better conditions in the near future than now exist if kept up as it should be. This genuine interest in the education of the children of this city will tend to keep the standards of education here on a level with the best, and it should not be permitted to fall.

It is well known that greater progress has been made along in the last along educational lines within the last thirty years. Rapid progress will probably be made in education within the next few decades, therefore imperative that the public in Grand Rapids be held in order to position in lines educational which Grand Rapids now holds as a lost.

TANDING OF THE GRAND RAPIDS, WISCONSIN, SCHOOLS.

The American school systems, and in particular the American high schools, are receiving at the present time a most searching investigation from many sources. We find articles in magazines, in dailies, and in newspapers criticizing high schools because they do not give the returns which payers should demand of them. Even Presidents of colleges and universities who might be expected to defend the schools as they have been interested in the past admit that a change must take place in the course of study in those schools if the best returns are to be expected from them. At of the high schools are conducted now they are only preparatory for colleges and universities, instead of providing for the 95 per cent of high school students who do not go to colleges or universities, they are for only the 5 per cent who do. This does not seem just to the majority of the people. We find such men as President Van Hise of the State University and State Superintendent C. P. Cary in this state the high schools that they are not fulfilling their mission. This is the most high schools. These same men ask that the high schools in this state should be so conducted that they will be for the greatest benefit of the 95 per cent while providing for the 5 per cent who do intend to go on to some college or university to complete their education. They ask that the schools "wake up" and introduce Manual Training, Domestic Science, and Agricultural Courses. Grand Rapids now offers full four year courses in Manual Training, Domestic Science, and Commercial Work, and no doubt, if the call were sufficiently urgent, a four year course in Agriculture similar to the Commercial course would also be introduced, as it possibly may be in the future. The Grand Rapids high school is administered to meet the needs of the community by the various courses as closely as possible. Therefore, the criticisms from President Van Hise and State Superintendent Cary just referred to do not effect the Grand Rapids schools.

We do not run a trade school, but we do teach in these various courses what to do and how to do it, and then give the student just enough exercises to fix the principles learned. It is not our purpose to turn out experienced stenographers, carpenters, bookkeepers, machinists, or dressmakers. Experience along these lines must be obtained after leaving the high school because different methods of doing business are used under different circumstances. Also it is not our purpose that the so called cultural studies are to be neglected because of the introduction of Manual Training, Domestic Science and Commercial courses. Just as much attention is now paid to reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history, and English in the grades as before. The languages, history, English, Science and mathematics in the high school receive the same most careful consideration and are taught with just as great efficiency as they have been taught. In fact, these subjects are taught even better today than ever before.

It is to keep these boys and girls in school who see no use in studying Algebra, Latin, History, etc., and give them at least a part of that cultural training that speaks an educated person and which would otherwise be lost to these boys and girls that special courses like manual training and domestic science are introduced. Besides these special courses enable those who pursue them to meet the world to better advantage at least part way in the "struggle for existence." The graduates from the domestic science, manual training, and commercial courses can say upon graduation, "We are ready to do work along these lines because we have prepared ourselves for that work." These courses keep boys and girls in school because they feel that they are doing something worth while, and in consequence, become able and useful citizens after leaving school. They can see where the good of all this present study will come to them in after life.

The wisdom of introducing these special courses in the Grand Rapids schools is shown by the fact that 155 boys and girls out of a total of 311, or nearly two-thirds of all in regular attendance, at the high school receive instruction in domestic science and manual training in the Witter building. 127 of this number are full high school pupils. This is to say that more than one-half of the total number in the high school not including the eighth grade are now taking work in the regular four years course in manual training and domestic science. Besides these, 46 others have chosen subjects in the commercial course. This gives a total of 173 or about three-fourths of the regular high school pupils who are benefited by the introduction of these special courses.

This shows that Grand Rapids is well up to the front in educational lines which make for the best interests of the community. This was made possible through the foresight and generosity of one of the most public spirited citizens of Grand Rapids, the late J. D. Witter, a progressive Board of Education, an alert Federated Women's Clubs and the splendid administrative ability of my predecessor, H. S. Youker.

We are sorry to say that there is a small number of citizens in Grand Rapids who do not altogether thoroughly appreciate what is being done for the education of their boys and girls. Instead of acknowledging the opportunities which are opened to their children they appear to think that all the splendid equipment and buildings are merely so much added expense. Of course it takes money to run a good school system but then no people can make better investments than building and operating good schools for their boys and girls.

We shall graduate this year from the manual training course eight students who have had four years of manual training. Also this year we shall graduate three students from the regular four years commercial course. There is no doubt but that some of these boys and girls who will be graduated from these courses this year would have withdrawn from school had it not been for the work they were permitted to take in commercial and manual training branches. Now they are some of the strongest members of the Senior class.

As to our standing with the state university, here is a letter from the University High School Inspector, A. W. Tressler, which explains itself: University of Wisconsin, Madison, February 9, 1910.

My dear Mr. Schweide:—Our committee has recommended that the Grand Rapids high school be continued on the accredited list.

The inspectors who visited your school were very much pleased with the organization, management and general average of the teaching. They found the equipment very good in all respects. The manner in which your school has improved since the present high school building was occupied must be very gratifying to the citizens of Grand Rapids. Your new manual training building is one of the most complete plants in the state, and is certainly an admirable memorial. It is four years since I saw your school. In that time it has improved in almost every direction—in material, equipment, enrichment of the course of study, and particularly in the quality of work which the students are doing. In view of the detailed report which was made to you at the time of our visit, it does not seem necessary for me to comment more at length at this time.

Very truly yours,

A. W. Tressler, Secretary of the Committee.

As to our standing with the state department, we follow out the lines laid down by the State Superintendent.

MEDICAL INSPECTION.

The need of the medical inspection of the schools is becoming more evident every year. Diseases are spread by pupils afflicted usually several days before they are compelled to withdraw from school. Chances for contagion are greatly increased in the school room. The trained eye of the physician can readily detect the symptoms of disease in the individual where the teacher herself may be in total ignorance of disease for a long while. Epidemics may thus be avoided to say nothing of the inconvenience caused by innocent exposures. It will not be necessary here for me to go into detail as to other reasons for having medical inspection of schools. It was hoped that medical inspection could be instituted in the Grand Rapids schools this year, but in spite of the enthusiasm with which the matter was taken up by the Federated Women's Clubs of the city, some of the local physicians, and the Board of Education, not much more than a proposal of favorable sentiment seems to have been brought about. There appears to be no form of organization among the local physicians so that the matter might be considered by them as a body; yet they do easily arrive at a mutual understanding in other little matters as though organized locally, and the matter of medical inspection will possibly, in the immediate future, receive their worthy attention in the same way. Probably a better way to gain medical inspection would be for the Board of Education to proceed to appoint a medical inspector and thereby settle the matter at once.

IMPROVEMENTS.

During the past year $8856.61 were paid out for repairs, permanent furnishings, and new building expenses. This amount includes $1450 paid on the construction of the boiler house at the Lincoln school and the price paid for the school site in the Eighth ward. The major improvements to buildings and school grounds that were made the past year may be summarized as follows: Lincoln school—All the seats and desks were repainted, 21 desks for commercial room and apparatus for chemistry and Physics purchased, cork matting and stair treads for upper hallway provided, and a complete change was made in a portion of one of the boys' toilet rooms as necessitated.

Witter school—A cement walk was built from the front of the Witter building in a curved line to Lincoln street, lawn surrounding building filled in and graded, the floors in rooms and hallways oiled, and rubber matting provided for the lower and third floor hallways. The Witter building committee completed the equipment of the machine room which now ranks among the best in the country in quality of equipment.

Howe school—All rooms and hallways were repainted, a cement floor laid in a portion of the basement, the desks and seats in four rooms repainted, and the board walk along Seventh street renewed.

Irving school—All rooms and hallways were repainted, all the seats and desks repainted, the three grade rooms provided with slate blackboards, a hot water coil and tank installed, and the linings and grates in the furnaces renewed throughout.

Garrison school—New outbuildings were put up, board walks constructed to the school house, a storm shield built, and a number of minor improvements were instituted.

Emerson school—All the rooms and hallways were repainted, the seats and desks repainted, a hot water coil and tank installed, and a cement walk constructed from the front of schoolhouse to the street.

Lowell school—All the rooms and hallways were repainted, the seats and desks in four rooms repainted, a cement floor laid in the basement, a coal bin constructed, and a hot water coil and tank were installed.

INTRODUCTION OF CHEMISTRY.

A course in Chemistry was added to the Curriculum of the high school. Such a course was found desirable because of the assistance that a knowledge of chemistry is in domestic science. Primarily elementary chemistry was introduced for the students in domestic science, but the courses of study have been so arranged that chemistry may be substituted for Physics or taken as an elective. The reception this course received from the students was greater than was anticipated, 25 enrolling in the course altho there is at present ample room for only 20 in the Laboratory.

Total Attendance 1909-1910	1232
Total Attendance 1908-1909	1140
Gain in attendance 1909-1910	92

The above statistics show that altho the enrollment for 1909-1910 is less by 81 than the enrollment for 1908-1909, the attendance has increased 92. The enrollment in the Kindergartens shows a decrease of 44 in comparison with last year's enrollment. However, the enrollment for the Kindergartens for 1909-1910 does not include the 28 who were promoted to the First Grade at the beginning of the second semester. Because of the semi-annual promotion system, these children are enrolled as belonging to the First Grade. The enrollment in general has probably been decreased to a large extent by the opening of the two new parochial schools in the city within the last year. The falling off in enrollment was quite perceptible in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades on the west side. The increased attendance is likely an indication of the fact that the number of families who come and go has been decreased and that Grand Rapids has entered upon a period of healthy growth.

Possibly for the first time we had with us five post graduate students who enrolled because of the added advantages offered in the Grand Rapids high school. They returned to take work in chemistry, domestic science, and languages in order that they might enter to better advantage selected courses in higher institutions of learning or better prepare themselves in their chosen work.

TEACHERS.

The policy of the Board of Education in the selection of teachers has been that of getting the best teachers possible for the salary paid. This is shown by the fact that the teachers from Grand Rapids are sought after by other cities who pay them a large advance in salary after leaving here. This also shows that the Board of Education is not paying salaries for good teachers beyond what is absolutely necessary to keep up the standard of the Grand Rapids schools. The best is none too good for the boys and girls of Grand Rapids, especially in the grades, and they ought to have it. They are entitled to it. The teaching corps of the Grand Rapids schools includes a large number who are with us for the first time this year. Mr. L. R. Grentz as principal of the high school, Mr. Fred W. Hilgendorf in history, Mr. Harry P. Patton in manual training, Miss Florence I. Mason in English, and the Misses Rhoda E. Dick and Helen Haydon in domestic science entered upon the first time in the high school this year. In the grade the new members are the Misses Rita Emery, Elizabeth Briggs, Fern Love, Ruth Wynnan and Clara Bartlett in the Howe building; Ellen Neale in the Irving building; Martha P. Yankoski, Frances McNeill and Mabelle Rogers in the Lowe building; Isabel Wynnan in the Garrison building; Grace Griffin in the Emerson building; Belle Quinn as east side director and Belle Harding and Lulu Hayes as assistants in the Kindergartens.

That is to say that out of a corps of teachers numbering forty-two, twenty, or almost one half, are with us for the first time this year. It is fitting to say in this connection that the teachers who have been with us for some time took up the initiation of the new teachers in such a spirit that it did not fail to make for the better of the schools at once.

In conclusion I desire to express my appreciation for the splendid support given the schools by the Women's Federated Clubs, the teachers as a body, the Board of Education and a generous public.

Respectfully submitted,

C. W. Schweide, Supt. of Schools

As has been stated before this evening, Grand Rapids stands at the head of the High Schools in the state.

By the gift of the Witter school we have a complete system of education. Two years from now we will graduate the first class in the state of Wisconsin to have a complete kindergarten, manual training and domestic science course from a completely equipped school of such.

We receive one credit for manual training in the regular course and two credits in the engineering course of the University of Wisconsin. We are really entitled to more credits and will without doubt receive them. The Board seldom has a chance to be heard before the public so I take this opportunity to explain some things to you.

We have no apologies to offer for you are getting full value received for every dollar paid out. Yet there has been and probably always will be a great deal said about expenses of schools and money spent.

We wish to take up this subject before you that you may be in a position to know the situation and answer poorly informed and misdirected objections.

The total taxes collected by the City Treasurer is a little over $99,000 and the amount paid out of this to the School Treasurer is $35,000. Allowing that sum of the whole city tax is direct tax against property lots on streets where sewers have lately been made we will admit for sake of argument say that the school tax is one half of the tax raised by general city levy.

The day laborer, meaning the commonly accepted term, for we are all day laborers for that matter, would be the one to suffer as if there were any hardship in the taxes from being excessive.

But in an examination of the tax roll we do not have to take the tax laborer as a basis, but take in who stand at the top of their craft and are being paid from four to six dollars a day for plumbing and brick laying. One such citizen pays a few cents less in taxes than the year as his total tax is and is also taxed from four to six dollars a day to him in his tax of $3, being one

Election Notice.

Office of the City Clerk, March 22, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that a judicial and municipal election is to be held in the several wards and election precincts in the city of Grand Rapids, on the fifth day of April A. D., 1910, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to this office, are given opposite to the title of the office and under the proper party or other designations, such in its proper column, and the questions submitted to a vote are as stated below.

Information to Voters

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters.—The voter, upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon, the names or initials of both the ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving this ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. The ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking the ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. To vote for any candidate, the voter should make a cross in the square after the name of each candidate he desires to vote for, or at any place within this space in which the name is printed. If he wishes to vote for a person for a certain office whose name is not on the ballot, he must write the name in the blank space under the printed name of the candidate for the office, and place a cross or mark as above stated. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If any ballot be spoiled it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another one in its stead, but not more than three (3) in all to any one voter. Five (5) minutes time is allowed in the booth to mark the ballot. Unofficial ballot or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it is marked by the voter. After it is marked, it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place. The voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by any reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have the assistance of one or two election officers in the making the same to be chosen by the voter, and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the city. Notwithstanding the fact that the weather bureau has predicted showers and wet weather at various times during the past month, not a drop of moisture has fallen in all that time, with the exception of a very light snow during the early part of the month. The consequence is that the roads have dried up in a manner heretofore unheard of for this section of the country, and in some cases they are so dusty as to be disagreeable during the heavy winds that have prevailed at times.

Geo. N. Wood, the real estate man, made a trip to Pittsville last Friday in his runabout, but encountered some bad spots in the road that delayed him quite materially. His auto ran into a spring hole on the road near the Hemlock Creek and it took some time, with the help of a nearby farmer, to release the machine. Five hours and a half were consumed in making the trip, Mr. Wood arriving at his destination about supper time. He remained in Pittsville all night and next morning came home by way of Dexterville and Babcock, over which route he found the roads first class.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all dealers.

Election Notice.

Office of the City Clerk, March 22, 1910.

To the electors of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin.
Notice is hereby given that a judicial and municipal election is to be held in the several wards and election precincts in the city of Grand Rapids, on the fifth day of April A. D. 1910, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to this office, are given opposite to the title of the office and under the proper party or other designations, each in its proper column, and the questions submitted to a vote are as stated below.

Information to Voters

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:—The voter, upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon, the names or initials of both the ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving this ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. The ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking the ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. To vote for any candidate, the voter should make a cross in the square after the name of each candidate he desires to vote for, or at any place within this space in which the name is printed. If he wishes to vote for a person for a certain office whose name is not on the ballot, he must write the name in the blank space under the printed name of the candidate for the office, and place a cross or mark as above stated. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If any ballot is spoiled it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another one in its stead, but not more than three (3) in all to any one voter. Five (5) minutes time is allowed in the booth to mark the ballot. Unofficial ballot or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it is marked by the voter. After it is marked, it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place. The voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by any reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have the assistance of one or two election officers in the marking the same to be chosen by the voter, and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the city. The presiding officer must administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability. The candidates for the different offices are, for example, as follows:
